HOMELAND SECURITY ALERT . . . NEW

MIDGET

By DORIAN WAGNER

RECENT intelligence obtained by the U.S. government has uncovered what is believed to be the most specific terrorist plot since Sept. 11 — Al Qaeda is planning to stash midget suicide bombers in overhead compartments in the cabins of airplanes!

Speaking on the condition of anonymity, a high-ranking Washington official confirms that Osama Bin Laden's terrorist network has reportedly enlisted the help of some 1,200 little people to down aircraft flying over the U.S. and Britain.

"We know from multiple, independent and corroborating sources that Osama's going to unleash a maelstrom of midgets to ransack the cockpits and hijack the planes," he says. "And the counterterrorism watch out too, because we hear these munchkin are really a bunch of horny little S.O.B.s."

Data from recent reliable reports indicate Al Qaeda has been planning "Operation Explosive Elf" for months, but recently stepped up the effort after Homeland Security Secretary Tom Ridge resigned.

"We noticed an increased amount of chatter just after Ridge announced his departure from the department," says our source. "Perhaps they felt we were more vulnerable without the man who makes the call on yellow, orange and red threat levels."

Reportedly, this army of munchkin missiles had been recruited from festivals, fairs and circus sideshows. The tiny terrorists were then sent to two camps in the Middle East to undergo rigorous flexibility, endurance and strength training.

"An operation of this size and proportion is no small feat," explains the insider. "It takes an incredible amount of planning to corral and train such an army of angry midgets."

The boot camps used for training the dynamite-packing mites have been compared to schoolyard playgrounds — with monkey bars, tunnels and obstacle courses being the main source of exercise.

"The jungle gym setup helped bulk them up while systematically insulting them at the same time — the perfect recipe for the ideal suicide bomber."

Masterminds of the purported plan then called for the infuriated dwarfs to be strapped with explosives and released at several terminals in major U.S. cities, their small stature allowing them to sneak by security and past the guns.

According to our source, specific intercepted information about the operation called for the militant midgets to "get on board before the rest of the passengers jam themselves into the 2' x 4½' overhead compartments and close the latch. The signal was to be the seat belt sign — once the captain turned it off, all hell would break loose.

"Ten to 15 midgets would simultaneously pop out from above," he explains. "Some would directly rush the cockpit, others would scare and manipulate their legs."

The designated pilot pygmy would then divert the freak show flight toward the intended target and the mission would be accomplished.

"Even with all the extra security measures taken by the U.S. to protect our skies, 'Operation Explosive Elf' shows Al Qaeda's continued fixation on using explosive-laden aircraft," says the official. "And as if midgets didn't already make some people

MAN IS HOT STUFF AFTER WALKING ON FIRE

'IF YOU CAN STEP COALS, YOU CAN

By DORIAN WAGNER

BERNIE GIEBLER turned from a shy, stuttering nerd into a ball of fire after a guru sparked up his life by having him walk across a bed of burning coals.

For most of his 54 years, Bernie was a total loser. He had three college degrees, but stuttered so much he could only work as a hubcap polisher.

Then, he met motivational guru and fire-walking coach Hunter Keef.

"I teach people that if they can walk over a bed of hot coals, they can do anything," says Keef, the author of Success: Learning to Take the Heat. "Bernie was subconsciously telling himself he was always going to be a droopy dork, but I showed him he didn't have to if he didn't want to.

"Someone just needed to light a fire under his butt, and that's pretty much what I did."

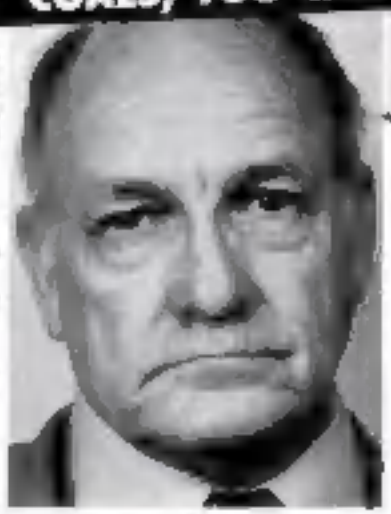
The 6-foot-3, bronzed, blond, buff-bodied inspirational speaker appears to be the epitome of success to Giebler and others who look to him for inspiration. He speaks with great energy during his seminars, never seems to stop to breathe or rest, and his enthusiasm is contagious.

"Hunter made me feel like I could do anything, and long as I believed I could," says Giebler. "He danced around so much on stage, his energy was literally hypnotizing.

"So when he told us to walk over a 10-foot path of 1,000 degree burning coals, no doubts or human barbecue thoughts even crossed our minds. We just did it." Keef went first, then sent the barefoot crowd one by one across the pit of burning embers set up outside.

"He threw his fists into the air, yelled a fiery 'Heat!' at each of us and waved us toward the red hot charcoal," Giebler remembers. "I would have expected to skip and hop around like a Mexican jumping beans or kernels of popcorn, but instead we all calmly strolled over the fire.

"No blisters. No burns. No scars. The coals scorched under my feet, but didn't hurt me. I felt like Jesus walking on water."



"WALKING on a bed of hot coals changed my life forever. Everything in my life has gone from a negative to a positive," claims Giebler.

And soon afterward, Giebler started to make a trend toward the better in his life.

"I went to a restaurant and

MY NEIGHBORS' KID LOOKS LIKE BAT BOY — CAN YOU HELP HIM?

DEAR EDITOR, This is a plea to get in touch with Dr. William Drakensberg, the plastic surgeon from South Africa who was going to make Bat Boy into a normal-looking person.

My neighbors have a little snot who is 3 years old who looks a lot like that boy.

He has a few razor sharp teeth, has a sweet and gentle nature, but is not a child you'd want to take out in public.

It could have been a stroke of luck, but when other incredible things started happening, I knew for sure it had something to do with the fire-walk.

XMAS MESSAGE FROM SADDAM HUSSEIN

JAILED Iraqi dictator Saddam Hussein has issued a bizarre holiday message wishing people of every faith "a very merry Christmas and most happy and prosperous New Year."

"I love Christmas — the gifts, the lights, the pageantry, the food, the music, the mistletoe, the sex, the booze . . . it's all good," he gushed like a babbling loon. He then launched into a self-serving diatribe comparing himself to both Christ and Claus, who he amazingly seems to think are the same person.

He also begged "Muslims, Christians and people of every faith throughout the world" to seek his immediate release from a Baghdad prison where he is being held on charges of killing tens of thousands of innocent men, women and children with nerve gas because, as the lunchy tyrant told the court, "they displeased me."

"We should seek to forgive even the most heinous of criminals during this holy, happy and most wonderful season," Saddam scribbled on a sheet of notebook paper that was shown on the Al-Jazeera TV network.

Beans and weenies make me break a noxious wind!

"Just as Jesus Christ was unjustly attacked by an angry mob and now must live as a pitiful toymaker and outcast at the North Pole, so, too, are innocent men awaiting a similar fate on trumped up charges such as those that have landed me in this stinking hell-hole.

"And the beans and weenies make me break the mother of all noxious winds!

"But I digress.

"Oh, were I free I would lead the fight for truth, justice, peace on Earth, and that other thing I keep seeing on the Christmas cards I've been getting from all my taxi-driver friends in the U.S., wait . . . I know — 'chestnuts roasting on an open fire,' no, I remember — 'goodwill to men.' "

The at-times seemingly sincere — and at other times idiotic — message that Saddam entitled in broken English, "A Christmas Thoughts from Me Yours Truly Saddam" took the White House and the Pentagon by surprise.

Insiders say they knew Saddam would be tempted to make a statement keyed to the holidays.

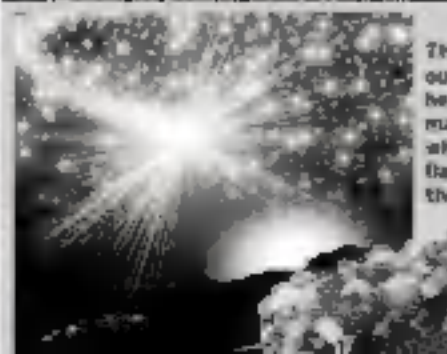
But as one Pentagon source put it, "We figured he would stick to a generic message of peace and love rather than shoot off his mouth about poor conditions in prison and risk upsetting the Pentagon and the Iraqi court that's trying him.

"These are the people who will decide whether he gets off with life imprisonment, or gets fried."

The President himself initially declined to comment on Saddam's message, but later told a reporter: "I really liked what he had to say about peace on Earth and also the beans and franks.

"I mean, if anyone deserves to spend the rest of his life in a noxious cloud, it's him."

STAR OVER BETHLEHEM FLASHING IN MORSE CODE - FRUITCAKE RECIPE



By CYNTHIA HALL

THE APPEARANCE of a previously unseen star over Bethlehem just days before Christmas has stunned astronomers who say the heavenly body is flashing in Morse code — and the message is a recipe for fruitcake!

"It's absolutely incredible," says Dr. Philemon Probst, one of dozens of astronomers who have been studying the star since it appeared on November 21.

According to the expert, the star — nicknamed "Jesus' Fruitcake Recipe Star" by newspapers because it seems to shine brightest over Bethlehem — imparts the same message night after night.

It begins with the words "Heavenly Fruitcake with Holy Spirits."

It goes on to instruct cooks to blend 1 cup butter, 1 cup nutmeg pod, 1 cup slivered almonds, 1 lemon, zest and juice, and 1½ cups flour. The mixture goes into an 8-inch mold and bakes for two hours in a 300-degree oven, the star confirms.

It also says "get one bottle (sic) of gin or vodka to drink while you are making the cake and to serve when it's done."

"It tastes pretty good, especially if you drink enough of that gin before you dig

Nasty greeting cards for the holidays

By BECKY TODD

GREETING card designer Walt Worthington was so angry his company fired him that he started his own line of notes called Happy Freaking Holidays, Now Go To Hell.

"I think the cards people send each other each year are phony, lying garbage," says the grumpy Worthington from his office in Brooklyn. "All I tried to do was tell the truth, and I got the boot. Well, the joke's on them because when customers see my product, I'm going to get filthy rich."

To promote sales, Worthington has provided WWN with a few samples of his "Bah Humbug" cards, soon to be available nationwide.

NEW WHITE HOUSE SCANDAL!

Bush caught eyeing Condi Rice with a pair of X-ray glasses

By FRED KENNEDY

JUST WEEKS after America's religious right brought out the vote to get him reelected, President George Bush was caught eyeballing new Secretary of State Condoleezza Rice through a pair of "X-ray specs."

And for those who've never tried out a pair of the [illegible] sold through ads in comic books, the "specs" really work.

"You can see right through clothes with them, no problem," says the senior [illegible] official who gave them to the President as a joke.

"But I only use them to joke with my wife, Barbara was gawking at the Secretary of State."

White House spokesman Scott McClellan denies the allegations, saying that even though it's true "some idiot" gave the President a pair of X-ray specs, "they don't really let you look through clothes and see women naked. It's an illusion."

U.S. dumped Colin Powell to make Condi his Secretary of State.

But even as McClellan denied the charges, many political experts believe this could explode into a huge sex scandal. And at least two people close to Bush are taking the accusations seriously: First Lady Laura Bush, and Rice.

"This could be a bigger mess than Clinton's cigar romp with Monica," says a White House aide who asked not to be named.

"I don't know who's angrier — Laura or Condi. The last I heard, Laura still won't let Dubya back into the bedroom."

The bizarre X-ray drama is said to have unfolded during a cabinet meeting while Rice presented a report to the President and Secretary of Defense Donald Rumsfeld. While she spoke directly to Rumsfeld about the worsening situation on the ground in Iraq, the President reportedly slipped on the glasses and stared at Condi.

"When she turned around and saw him with the glasses on she was startled and asked him what they were for," says the senior administration official. "He yanked them off and stashed them in his pocket and said his eye doctor told him to wear them to reduce glare.

"It was a lame excuse, but she bought it until somebody blabbed the truth to her later in the day. She demanded a closed-door meeting and you could hear screaming through the door.

"She said, 'If you want to see under my blouse, here — get yourself an eyeful!' Then she stomped out, still buttoning up as she walked.

"I'm sure all this will blow over. And I'm not even going to guess at how long it's going to take for the First Lady to get over it.

"She hasn't been real lovey dovey with George anyway since she overheard him telling an aide that holiday cookies are turning her into 'a little porker.'"

Claiming to speak for the "moral plurality" that gave Bush his ballyhooed election "mandate," Rev. Dr. Richard Grenier of Baton Rouge, La., says the X ray specs fiasco is "a major disappointment."

"If the President wants to see naked women so bad then maybe he should resign and become a gynecologist. Aside from husbands, they are the only men who are authorized to see ladies in the altogeth-

Big Swede wins ex-stream contest

. . . with 45-foot tinkle!

By MICHAEL CHERON

FOR the first time since 1948, a contestant in the prestigious International Urination Competition has won the gold in both the distance and accuracy categories!

Swedish champion Bjorg Jorgenson astounded judges and brought spectators in packed stadium cheering to their feet with his spectacular 45-foot [illegible] — a new world record.

"It was a magnificent, perfect arc — like a pure yellow rainbow!" declares sports reporter Bruno Schwein, who covered the [illegible] held in Hamburg, Germany.

"Then, just a couple of hours later, in the accuracy event, Jorgenson knocked over a shot glass at 30 paces on five consecutive tries — a perfect score.

"When the big [illegible] need it, the crowd went wild again. The roar of more than 12,000 fans was deafening."

The triumph was a testament to the grit, spirit and determination of the 28-year-old whiz kid, who had failed to medal in any competition since bringing home the bronze in 1996 and was widely seen as washed up.

"My parents thought I was pissing my life away," reveals Jorgenson. "But I continued to train three to four hours a day.

"I dedicate this victory to my fiancee, who has always encouraged me to pursue my dream."

The sport is said to have evolved from macho contests between drunken Viking berserkers during their downtime between raids. The first official games were held in a Munich beer hall in 1912 and they've grown over the years into an annual event in which athletes from 42 countries compete.

"The Germans have long dominated the sport, owing to their heavy consumption of beer," says Schwein. "The Australians have also sent many legendary competitors to the games. Sweden hasn't won in decades and that made Jorgenson's victory all the more dramatic."

Three-time champion Brian Crawford of Australia had been heavily favored to win the gold in distance.

"I've got to admit, I'm PO'd I only got silver this year," he says.

The key to the sport, aficionados say, is drinking enough liquid to fill your bladder to capacity, allowing pressure to build up.

"It's the same principle as a fire hose," explains Jorgenson. "The trick is knowing when to stop filling up. One drink too many and you soak your pants on the way from the locker room to the field."

In addition to taking home a handsome $70,000 purse, the tinkling titan was awarded a large gold trophy, engraved with the image of a helmeted Viking relieving himself.

"The real reward for me is look on the faces of all the young boys in the crowd who may now be inspired to enter the sport," he says.

WHIZ KID Bjorg Jorgenson's record-setting 45-foot shot earned him the gold medal in the distance event.

ARE YOU KIDDING?

The [illegible] term for urination, "shake my dangler" is actually quite modest. Linguists say its first known use was by St. George Mozzarell — in the 3rd century A.D.

GOVERNMENT OFFICIAL DEAF TO FEMALE VOICE!

Maybe your husband has this problem too!

A TOP GOVERNMENT official responsible for addressing the concerns of women now admits he has a rare hearing problem that makes it impossible to hear female voices!

Herbert Haupt served as women's minister of Austria for three years, during which he kept the condition a secret from both staffers and female activists who came to his office to lobby for changes, vent their frustrations and inform him of women's views.

"Mr. Haupt would nod very attentively and thank me for my input – I had no idea he wasn't listening to a word I was saying," says one stunned women's health crusader who met with the official more than a dozen times.

The truth finally came to light when Haupt left the post and became a member of Parliament. During a debate on a key bill, the leader complained that he couldn't understand a female colleague – and remained unable to hear her until she repeated her remarks in a much deeper voice.

When pressed for an explanation, Haupt sheepishly admitted that he's deaf to sounds over

SIAM HAS NO TWINS!

— King Bhumibol Adulyadej

IN AN amazingly frank announcement, the King of Siam has officially announced the country has no twins.

"I have no idea where this Siamese twin idea came from," says King Bhumibol Adulyadej. "Whenever two babies come out attached, doctors immediately name them Siamese. We're a close-knit country, but it's not like we're all attached at the hip or anywhere."

Siam is the original name for the country now known as Thailand, however most nationals prefer to themselves as Siamese. King Adulyadej is the longest-serving head of state in power since 1946.

"Since the beginning of my rule, I've rarely heard of a single set of conjoined twins being born here. But I'm afraid the rest of the world is under the impression that the whole kingdom is crawling with interlocked freaks.

"We don't even have any regular twins," he adds. "Not a single pair."

The first-ever set of conjoined twins, Chang and Eng, were indeed born in Siam in 1811, but the misunderstanding is understandable.

"It never happened again, that's all it meant," continues the King. "One little slip up and the world goes crazy and crowns our country the namesake of oddities."

By VICKIE YORK

FLAKY feminist Tina Corkman has launched a one-woman campaign to redefine the American concept of beauty. The svelte book editor is deliberately fattening up — and vows to keep pigging out until she weighs a scale-crunching 1,000 pounds!

"For too long, beauty in our society has been defined by men who view women only as sex objects," declares the 30-year-old women's libber.

"As a result, all across America, females of all ages are starving themselves and mutilating their bodies with liposuction — in pursuit of an unattainable, Barbie doll-like ideal."

"Well enough is enough. It's time to fight back."

Right now, 5-foot-4 Tina weighs 112 pounds, with a slim waist and firm, buttpart curves that often earn her unwanted wolf whistles from construction workers. But her trim physique will soon be history — last week she embarked on a belly-ballooning 20,000 calorie a-day diet.

"My goal is to reach 1,000 pounds in six months," Tina announces.

"Dating back to prehistoric times, the true ideal form for women was always the rotund Earth Mother archetype," Tina insists. "Look at paintings from the Renaissance and you see how 'full-figured' women were.

"It's only since the advent of Playboy and other sexist propaganda that we've come to believe that grown women should have flatter bellies than teenage boys."

A typical breakfast for Tina now consists of a six cheese omelets, 16 pancakes smothered in butter and maple syrup, plus a dozen strips of bacon, washed down by a gallon of chocolate milk. Lunch consists of three large meat-lover's pizzas with glazed breadsticks and four Milky Way bars as a snack. Dinner is six cheeseburgers with a mountainous heap of French fries, plus two gallons of ice cream and a huge slab of chocolate cake for dessert.

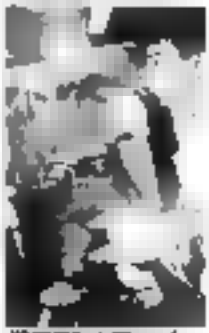
FAST-FOOD RESTAURANT SERVES FOOD AT 35 M.P.H.

By ELAINE FYLE

A ROVING restaurant gives new meaning to the term "fast food." The "meal-mobile" is a van that takes orders, cooks and serves food, all while traveling at 35 miles per hour.

"People are always on the go," says Harry Ullman, one of the five owners. "And even stopping at a drive-thru for a meal slows you down. Our restaurant lets you stay on schedule."

Ullman takes the orders and serves the food while his partner Elaine Silver cooks the meals.



COOKING at 35 m.p.h. does present some problems . . . especially when turning corners.

The van cruises down the road trolling for customers. A big sign on the side of the van reads "Honk if you want a hot dog." Written on the back of the van also gives the van's phone number and e-mail address if anyone wants to order en route.

Once the order is taken, the cars line up next to each other. Money is sent through a chute connecting the two cars, and then the food comes back the other way.

Surprisingly, selling food while traveling 35 m.p.h. isn't against the law. "That's probably because no one ever conceived of such a thing," admits Ullman.

So far the restaurant is receiv-

REAL-LIFE 'WALDO' FOUND HIDING!

By JAKE ANDERSON

AN ESCAPED convict attempted to hide from police by wearing a "Waldo" disguise, but it backfired on him.

Bank robber Wally Deeber, a.k.a. "Waldo," broke out of Illinois State Penitentiary last August and tried to avoid capture by dressing like the cartoon character in the Where's Waldo? books.

"The cartoon Waldo is really excellent at blending into crowds," says Deeber. "That's why it's such a challenge to find him. So I thought if I put on the same red and white striped shirt and beanie, along with the blue pants that he wears, nobody would ever see me."

But Deeber's picture showed up on a cable TV show called America's Least Wanted, and somebody recognized him. Soon the word got out that an escaped convict was on the loose dressed like Waldo.

Says Alan Martin, the police officer who captured Deeber, "Once we knew he was in our town, we were all on our car radios asking each other, 'Where's Waldo? Where's Waldo?' We all wanted to be the one who found him."

Although Deeber's disguise worked for a while, Martin spotted him.

RUB YOUR HEAD ON SOME BOOBS!

. . . & WATCH YOUR HAIR SPROUT!

By HOWARD SCOTT

ATTENTION bald guys: You can grow a full head of hair — and you only need the boobs of a willing wife or girlfriend.

Excited scientists say the Breast Baldness Cure (BBC) worked in 87 percent of cases.

Our study is based on the measured hair regeneration of ten bald males who rubbed their heads on the breasts of a female partner for 10 minutes twice a day," says Swiss scientist Anton Luss.

"After three months of treatments, 78 men reported dense regrowth, nine described their scalp coverage as thin to moderate and 13 said they saw no difference.

In a separate control group, only five men reported moderate to dense regrowth and the remainder experienced no change.

"Based on our study, we believe BBC is the natural answer to male pattern baldness," says Luss.

Said Wall: "Research grew out of an obscure medical report overturning the health of prostitutes in Amsterdam.

A paper doctor noticed that johns who enjoyed rubbing their heads on the breasts of hookers all had thick, healthy hair. The physician noted this phenomenon in passing, and drew no conclusions from his finding.

"I read the report in a medical journal, got really excited and ran with it," Luss says. "BBC is the happy result.

"The men who reported dense scalp coverage say their wives or girlfriends were willing to let them rub their heads across their breasts for a full 10 minutes twice a day for three months," he says.

"Obviously, the willingness of the female partner is a major component in the success or failure of the treatment. A few men told us that their partners occasionally complained of sore nipples, but the consistency of treatment seemed to be the key to success.

OOPS! WORLD'S BIGGEST VENUS FLYTRAP EATS FAMILY'S NEW KITTEN

A HUGE Venus flytrap that's been in a Mississippi family for generations took a sudden dislike to a helpless kitten and ate it as onlookers watched helplessly.

The plant – named Brutus by owners Mildred and Jack Watson – is like a family pet, and the three-times-a-day feedings draw onlookers from parts far and wide. At 5 feet tall, the voracious veggie has been considered the world's largest venus flytrap by starved bug fans.

"We just started changing windows," says Mildred. "And we got the kitten a few days ago to add a little warmth to the place.

"We came out of the shower and the crowd that was waiting seemed upset and I thought 'Well, what's wrong with them?' Then we saw the kitten's tail hanging out of one of Brutus' traps. We yanked on the tail, hard, but we knew it was a goner."

Brutus has shown signs of aggression before, and Jack says he once saw it actually scoop up a mouse that had been sitting up camp around the plant.

"Nobody believed me, but he did it. That mouse had been annoying him for weeks. He's a big flytrap and can be dangerous if he turns mean. I don't know what we'll do if he does. It would kill my mom to have to get rid of Brutus."

A nation's sportswriters bemoan fracas at Pacers-Pistons basketball [redacted]. Ed says . . .

NBA BRAWL PROVES THAT HOOPSTERS HIT LIKE SISSIES!

I'M MADDER than Shaquille O'Neal in a Volkswagen Beetle at all this fuss the media has been making about that "basketbrawl."

From the way these preachy sportswriters have been going on about the big brawl at the Indiana Pacers-Detroit Pistons game, you'd think nuns had broken their vows and busted out fighting.

Let's face it, from what I saw on TV nuns are tougher than the NBA giants involved in the brawl.

NBA officials are making a big deal about how ashamed they are over the fight and it's no wonder.

I'd be ashamed too if in case you didn't see it, two hoopsters — who were at least 6 feet 6 and 240 pounds each — took clean shots at fans, charging them right on the chops.

And what happened? Nothing. Not only weren't the fans [redacted] or severely injured by the punches — they were barely faxed.

And we're not talking about bodybuilder guys who happen to be fans.

These fans were what you'd expect fans to look [redacted] — [redacted] pot-bellied and totally out of shape.

Why, my [redacted] wife Thelma Jean's mom could have coldcocked these out your lights just by flapping her jaws.

Yup, NBA bigwigs ought to be [redacted] these players. Obviously, they're not as in shape or as tough as they're made out to be.

These guys make multimillions a year for supposedly being "the greatest athletes in the world."

Well, my daughter — my little cupcake Sarah Lee — has got some dumb punch.

[redacted] folks are complaining that the suspensions these players got from the NBA were too easy.

Those folks are right! In addition to suspending the players without pay, NBA bosses should have insisted these sissies go to karate or boxing gyms and learn how to fight.

I don't know about you, but when I pay the fortune giving at it.

You sure don't get your money's worth if these supposedly superjocks can't duke it out like real men.

The NBA is right to think that the brawl cost them the respect of the public.

Let's face it, who is gonna respect some towering, slam-dunking jock when he can't even hit as hard as [redacted]-grade girl?

LESS IS NOT MORE . . .

THE SECRET TO OVERCOMING LINGERIE-SHOPPING PANIC

A gift guide for guys with galpals!

By APRIL SIMMONS

WHY IS IT that guys insist on buying frilly little lingerie and impractical underthings for their girlfriends? For birthdays, holidays and anniversaries, they descend on stores like Victoria's Secret in droves in search of some lacy, racy number they think will make a sexpot out of their ladyfriends.

"What you're really doing is terrorizing her because now she feels like she has to wear the darn thing," says intimate apparel expert Tanya Bellini. "Those too hot-to-trot numbers only work for the models in the catalogs. Real women need real underwear with real support. You just can't get that from a piece of string."

She advises men to save their money and buy something their women will really get use of, even if it's not super-sexy.

"Less is not more when it comes to intimate apparel, except when you're talking about cost. The teenier the bikini, thong or bra, the more it costs — and the less use she'll get out of it."

Picking the right skivvies can be confusing, though, so Bellini offers several tried-and-true tips for guaranteed satisfaction.

"Just figure out what part of your girl's figure needs a little boost and focus on that for a simple solution."

Flabby tummies are the number one obstacle to overcome. The key, she says, is covering it up.

"If your girlfriend has a bit of a spare tire around her waist, don't buy a cute little string bikini. They'll only punch the pudge and make her look and feel worse.

"Think granny panty -- they need to fit loose enough and rise high enough to wrap the roll."

Once the belly is bundled, Bellini suggests picking up something to make a more shapely silhouette out of your gal's saddle thighs.

"If a woman is pear-shaped, she's got 'thick' thighs. Once again, a teeny weenie bikini won't make her bottom half appear thinner."

And even if your gal has great legs and a tight tummy, she probably still suffers from saggy butt syndrome.

"The droopy derriere is a big downfall with women. If her butt has that unsightly 'long' look to it, avoid a thong — unless you want it all to just hang out. Right now, there are miracle knickers on the market that have built in pads to give an instant lift. The effect? A nicely rounded rump."

With your researched panty purchase, you've successfully concealed, constricted and lifted, and your girlfriend should love her new sculpted perfection. However, Bellini does have one warning: "None of these sugges-

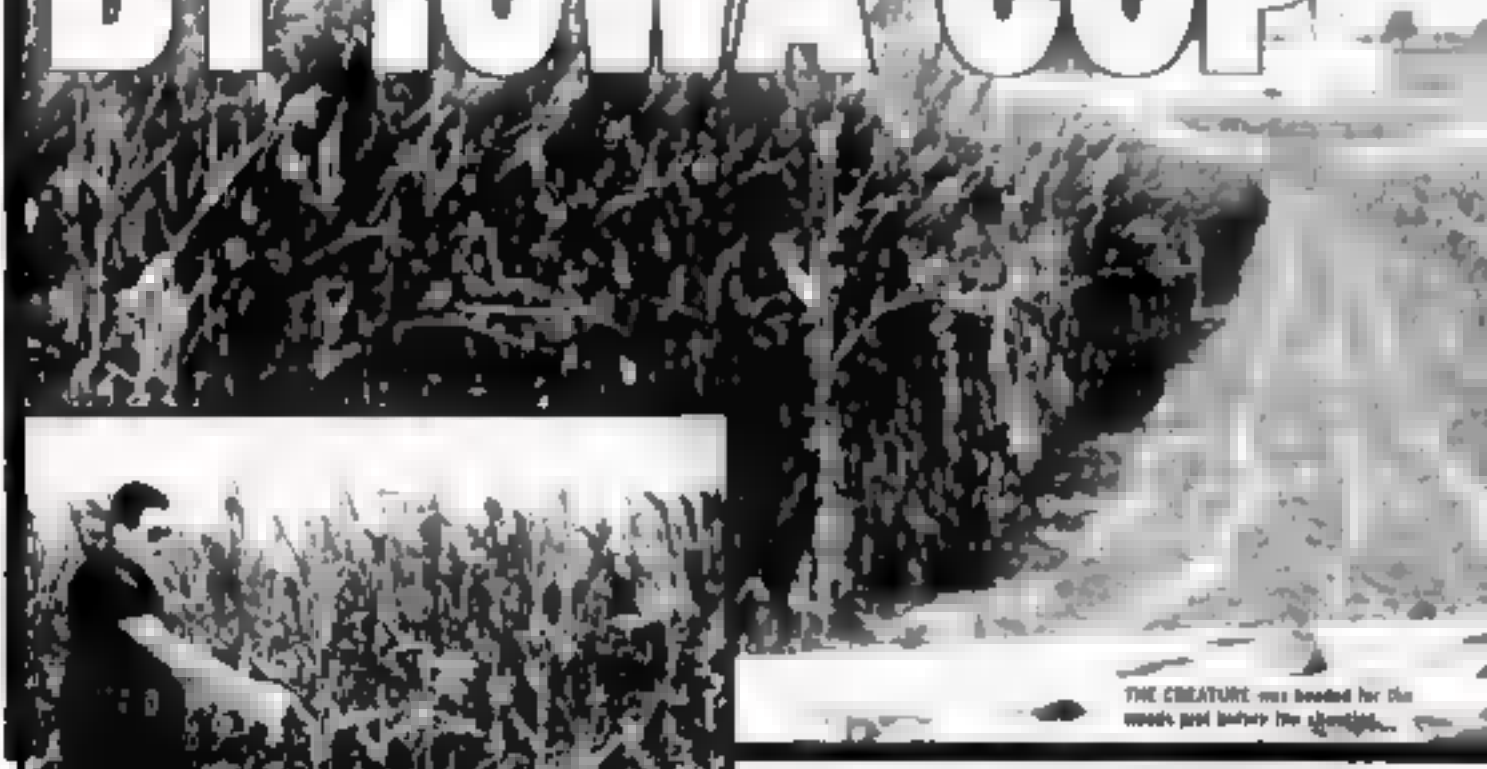
TWO-HEADED BY IOWA COP



THE CREATURE was headed for the woods just before the shootout...

DOUBLY TROUBLE: Bigfoot stats by cops was exceptionally rare because it sported two heads, as seen in this spinning photo taken by researchers before the carcass was whisked away by authorities.

By MIKE FOSTER

RESEARCHERS were ecstatic when they discovered an astounding oddity in a remote rural area: The world's only known two-headed Bigfoot!

But not seconds after the star-struck encounter on the edge of an Iowa cornfield, the lumbering eight-foot-tall creature was snatched away by fearful state troopers.

The six cryptozoologists bitterly decry the shocking — changing their studies happy cops deprived the scientific world of a unique specimen.

"It's impossible to overstate the finding a Northern Hairy-nosed Wombat with triplets.

The furious scientists compared the killing to the shooting of Bubo the pet tiger by a nervous wildlife officer in Florida earlier this year.

"What these police officers did in callously destroying it was unconscionable," says England. "Based on our calculations, there won't be another two-headed Bigfoot born for 60 years."

The drama unfolded near a farm about 30 miles outside Great Bend, when the team — using cameras, microphones and sophisticated tracking gear — spotted the strange beast emerging from the field.

While the ape-man's two heads appeared identical, their personal

"For a moment, it looked as if the Bigfoot might charge and rip us all limb from limb."

That's when a pair of state troopers, responding to calls about "funny-looking" outsiders snooping around, saw the bizarre man-beast and opened fire.

"They pumped [illegible] 40 rounds into the creature's chest," says Dr. Fegland. "It was totally unnecessary. The 'good' head was

WAL-MART MANAGER GIVES WHAT HE GETS

— Crooks complain after receiving a cash refund with same bogus bills they used to pay for merchandise!

SOMETIMES it's more fun to teach crooks a lesson than just plain old calling the police.

And in a bizarre tale of random luck and quick thinking, that's exactly what happened at a Cincinnati area Wal-Mart when two thieves tried to pass off counterfeit bills as the real thing.

No one ever liked being grounded, but one angry preteen took her protest too far — she shot her mom in the face while she was sleeping!

Elvira Marissa Walton, 48, was found dead in her bed by her 10-year-old son.

"Apparently the motive is because the daughter was upset that the mother had grounded her," says police spokesman Lt. Jeff Butler. "She is your average 13-year-old, harmless and everything," says an older sister. "There's nothing that bad to make her do that to my mama."

10 INJURED IN O'REILLY DEBATE CLUB BRAWL!

By KATE VASQUEZ

POLICE arrested three members of a college debate club named for FOX News host Bill O'Reilly, after a brawl broke out during an argument over prayer in schools.

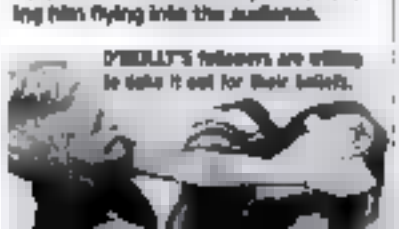
"We kept telling them to shut up and they wouldn't," says Stillman Mease, president of the Bill O'Reilly Forensic Society, as she awaited arraignment on assault charges. "So we decided to let our fists do the talking.

"Judging from how many of those weak sisters went blubbering all to the hospital, I'd say this is one debate we won hands down – literally."

The O'Reilly club has no official connection to the in-your-face FOX personality, who's known for loudly cutting off guests with opposing viewpoints.

"We just named it after Bill to show our respect for the decisive way he cuts through the nonsense and tells it like it is – you're wrong, you've always been wrong, you'll always be wrong, and if you have a problem with that then you better take it on the road and keep walkin', pal."

Witnesses say the forensics fracas started within minutes of the debate's opening. Members of the O'Reilly club began catcalling as their opponents' lead speaker argued against organized prayer in schools. Then Mease and two club officers jumped onstage and slammed the anti-prayer speaker across the back with a hymnal, sending him flying into the audience.



O'REILLY'S followers are willing to take it out for their beliefs.

HOW TO TELL IF A GUY IS GOOD IN BED

— before you hop in the sack

By G.A. GUNN

LADIES, before you date that hunky guy you met last night, read the vital signs that will reveal if he's a STUD or a DUD in bed.

The list was compiled from a dozen different American and European studies of male sexual behavior and was edited by Weekly World News' own crack medical reporting team.

Here's what you must look for to determine if the man of your dreams will bring you bliss or the blahs:

DUD: If the ring finger of his right hand is the same length or shorter than his forefinger, dump him fast. This guy has all the sex drive of a castrated camel.

STUD: Look for square palms and plenty of hair on the back of your guy's hands. Scientists say this means he's probably descended from the ancient Neanderthals and will be a tireless animal in the sack.

DUD: Does he have a huge beer belly? If he does, get rid of him. All he'll do is squash you into the mattress like a bug and the pleasure will be all his, not yours.

STUD: If your prospective date is balding, get ready to have a good time. This experiment and get kinky, he's the [redacted] for you.

DUD: As a general rule, steer [redacted] of lawyers. [redacted] 'll bore you to death in the sack, [redacted] if you try to get too kinky they'll [redacted] up suing you for [redacted]-al malpractice.

STUD: Cops are very good in bed and they [redacted] wonderful [redacted] of using their handcuffs. Be warned though, never allow him to bring his pistol to bed [redacted] gun in the sack is quite enough.

Follow these tips faithfully and you'll enjoy your sex life enormously. But all the studies warn not to have sex on a first date — you don't want your stud to think you're easy.

My neighbors' puppy had a terrible accident

DEAR DOTTI: The family down the street from me used to have a cute St. Bernard puppy. Unfortunately, they [redacted] keep him fenced so he kept "doing his doody" in my yard.

It wouldn't have been so bad if he had been a poodle. But St. Bernards are big dogs, if you catch my drift.

I called the animal control people here in town and they told me to get a BB gun and shoot him "where it hurts" whenever I caught him crapping in the yard. My son has several rifles, a BB-gun included. So the next time Sarge started pooping in my yard, I grabbed what I thought was the BB-gun and pulled the trigger. Unfortunately, I grabbed the wrong gun – and I accidentally blew a hole the size of a pie plate in Sarge's behind. Nobody was around so I dug a hole and buried him. Now the neighbors have signs out offering a reward for their "lost dog." I'm afraid to tell them the truth, Dotti. – Remorseful in Lexington, Ky.

But when I finally met her at Checkers a few weeks ago, she looked like a walking skeleton. I couldn't tell if she has a pretty face or not – she's got too many zits.

It wouldn't be so bad if she acted normal. But she sits cross-legged on the floor and – eeewwww! Gross! She doesn't wear [redacted] only underwear!

WARNING! DON'T ENTER POLITICS — IT CAN TURN YOUR DAUGHTER GAY!

By MICHAEL FORSYTH

ARE you considering a run for public office? Before you throw your hat in the ring, be warned: Entering politics can turn your daughter gay!

An eye-opening university study reveals that daughters of politicians are 10 times more likely to become lesbians than other women.

"This is a syndrome that Vice President Dick Cheney, Missouri Congressman Dick Gephardt and former U.N. Ambassador Alan Keyes — whose daughters are all out[illegible] — have learned about the hard way," says psychiatrist Dr. Dan Feldingberg, co-author of the study.

"Girls are typically at a critical stage of their development when their dads launch careers in politics. Having a father absent from the household [illegible]

"Only a small fraction of these women are out of the [illegible] Dr. Feldingberg explains. "The majority maintain a low profile when it comes to their sexual [illegible] out of deference to their dads — they want to avoid causing them trouble on the campaign trail."

The lesbianism rate bears no [illegible] party affiliation or political persuasion. Many of the politicians with gay daughters are staunch family values activists, like Republican Keyes, who, during his unsuccessful bid for the Illinois Senate, chided Cheney's daughter Mary for "selfish homosexuality" because she's gay.

"Needless to say, it was rather embarrassing for Keyes when his own daughter Maya came out as a lesbian on the Internet," the researcher notes.

Physical attractiveness doesn't seem to be a factor. Pretty blondes like Christy Gephardt, whose dad is former House Majority Leader, are just as likely to turn out girl crazy as homely gals with stereotypically beefy, "mannish" builds.

The higher the political office you seek, the "more gay" you're daughter is likely to become, the study found.

"If you run for the school board, your daughter may only become bisexual," reveals Dr. Feldingberg. "If you're elected to the city council, expect a lipstick lesbian — a gay woman who appears feminine and whose attire and outward behavior is unlikely to embarrass you.

"But run for national office and the odds are high that your daughter will become a 'butch' type lesbian who shows up for Thanksgiving dinner in a leather jacket, sporting a Marine-style haircut —

FRENCHMEN INTO FROGS

By PAULA MARTIN

THE discovery of moderately intelligent bullfrogs in the sewers of Paris has stunned biologists who say that with the exception of a single chromosome, the amphibians are genetically indistinguishable from Frenchmen!

And that means "frogs," as the French like to call themselves, may be mutating into their namesake in what one expert calls "[illegible] new proof of the theory of evolution."

Some Frenchmen aren't exactly thrilled with the idea that frogs are, for them, a step up on the evolutionary ladder.

But there's no arguing the fact that "Parisian sewer frogs" share many unique traits with their human antecedents, including:

- A comical tendency to "freeze up" and "tremble in fear" in the presence of a bar of soap or a stick of deodorant.
- A more serious refusal to defend themselves when threatened or attacked, although they don't seem to mind when American and British scientists go to bat for them.
- A taste for overpriced wines and haute cuisine, complete with lots of delicate sauces and other effete [illegible] foods like escargot and frogs' legs.

Sacre Bleu!

SCIENTISTS discovery explains why the French refuse to join the [illegible] in Iraq.

- A mysterious accomplishment except, perhaps, those that are found in works of fiction and often imagined to be real.

The frogs also seem to enjoy being dressed up in popular French attire, such as striped shirts and miniature berets.

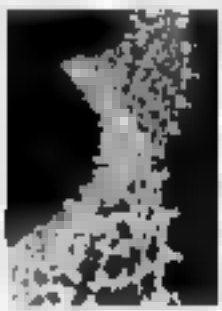
"There's no getting around it — we're witnessing the evolution of humans into an entirely new mutant species," says Dr. Gerhard Struber, the evolutionary biologist who discovered the [illegible] while studying bacteria "blooms" [illegible] the streets of Paris.

"The challenge [illegible] us now is [illegible] whether the transformation will occur [illegible] whether humans other than the [illegible] will be affected.

"Canadians, many of whom are carriers of [illegible] maybe soon

"Interestingly, this may explain the French refusal to join the coalition in Iraq. Bill notoriously dry and [illegible] there, just the sort [illegible] that would be repellent to frogs."

News of the mutations sent shockwaves through the global scientific community as experts [illegible] to explain what mysterious force of nature altered the chromosome that seems to be responsible for the mutations.



SECRETS of French frog transformation reside in the double helix.

To date, no fewer than 20 theories are making the rounds, although the most plausible seems to be that the French taste for haute [illegible] including [illegible] that begins as tadpoles [illegible] a contributing factor.

"The amphibians don't have the ability to speak, which makes testing their intelligence a little [illegible]," says Struber. But in simple [illegible] to learn simple tasks — such as deciding [illegible] to choose salmon fillet capped with a creamy lemon-dill sauce and served with [illegible] portions of rice pilaf and ratatouille on an electrified grid or go [illegible] for tender veal medallions sauteed in a [illegible] and sliced mushrooms in a stainless steel food dish — we can see that they have IQs in the 45 to 60 range.

"That's a little better than the French population of [illegible] and frogs can't [illegible] with approaching fluency — they don't have the vocal apparatus to form any but the most rudimentary of sounds.

"[illegible]" and "Ribbet," are about [illegible] heard out of them, except for one frog that keeps saying, "Ce [illegible] jouer du tuba," which in English means, "That [illegible] sure knows how to play the tuba."

"If anybody knows what that's all about, please — give me a call."

While Struber and other scientists continue to collect frogs and develop their theories on French evolution, [illegible] leaders — including President George Bush — are watching the situation closely.

"The Prime [illegible] is [illegible] and appalled by this strange turn of events," [illegible] Bush [illegible] official in Washington.

"He's pretty sure that's what all those frogs saying 'Sacre bleu' is all about. I'm not the most religious guy in the world but it kinda makes sense."

Back in France, President Jacques Chirac has made no public statements on the discovery of the frogs. However, inside sources say he is having champagne with the bizarre attendants and has asked the French government to allocate billions of francs in emergency funding to find a good answer.

But to what appears to have been a veiled reference, Chirac did say that Frenchmen "are the crown jewels of human evolution, and where the French go, ultimately the world will follow."

The White House sources couldn't disagree more.

"If that were the case, the whole damn world would have been hiding from Hitler -- like the French did -- instead of marching straight into Paris to kick his sorry butt," says the insider.

"Sorry, Jacques, but the only people who seem to be following the French — are the frogs."

NEW SPRAY MAKES HOMOSEXUALS INVISIBLE TO GAYDAR!

By MICHAEL CRAIG

GOOD NEWS for closet gays! A California company is marketing an amazing new spray that makes homosexuals invisible to the sixth sense some folks have for spotting them, commonly known as gaydar.

The manufacturers of Gaydar-Buster claim that the wonder product works on the same basic principle as the B-2 Stealth Bomber used by the U.S. Air Force.

"Even the most flamboyant gay man can blend unnoticed into a straight environment after spraying on Gaydar-Buster, which is odorless, invisible and earth-friendly," says a spokesman for the San Diego company, Advanced Pheromones Technologies.

"Given the current political climate and the nationwide backlash against homosexuals, the need for every gay man to appear straight as arrows has never been more pressing."

Some experts are skeptical, and Internet chatter has pointed out that researchers haven't even been able to prove gaydar exists, only that certain straight people claim to possess it.

Even so, many homophobic crusaders are calling for a ban on the spray, which costs $19.95 for a 10-ounce can.

"The thought of 'stealth gays' teaching in our schools, joining the military or running for public office is highly disturbing," says the Reverend Pete Peabody of Tulsa, Okla., who helped push through the constitutional ban on gay marriage in his state.

EYES Beefcake! Mary could scan the crowd for hunks after spraying on Gaydar-Buster.

IN WHAT experts are calling the most startling scientific discovery of the century, a British astronomer has located a planet completely populated by nude supermodels!

Astronomer Robert Newcombe, of London's Royal National Observatory, made the astounding find while testing an experimental high-powered electron telescope over 500 times more powerful than the Hubble Telescope.

"At first I thought I was hallucinating due to lack of sleep and overwork," recalls Newcombe. "So I called several colleagues over to confirm what I saw. We were stunned."

What Newcombe and his colleagues observed on the planet Vidare was a tropical paradise-like atmosphere, lush foliage,

Newcombe finds both positive and negative aspects of his once-in-a-lifetime discovery. "The bad news is that the supermodels populate a planet [redacted] coffee dates with them."

"But the good news is our technology is such that we are able to capture crystal-clear photos of the supermodels, which is invaluable for research. In fact, [redacted] immediately volunteered to work overtime studying the photos and is [redacted] to continue their research. Now that's dedication."

WE'VE BEEN FATTENING UP AMERICANS WITH JUNK FOOD FOR YEARS

By DIXIE STINSON

— & they're finally ripe for slaughter!

AS IF overweight Americans didn't have enough to worry about with people making fun of them all the time, a captured space alien has told the FBI that "fatbos we've fattened up with junk food are finally ripe for the slaughter."

And to make sure agents understood exactly [redacted] he [redacted] talking about, the almond-eyed bulb-head went on to say, "That's right, [redacted]. We're going to eat them."

As wild as the creature's claims might sound, the F[redacted] reason to believe that he is telling the truth.

Sources say that when discovered in the kitchen of a fast-food restaurant in Birmingham, Alabama, that had closed for the night, [redacted] spraying already calorie-rich burgers, fries and [redacted]es with a sticky brown mist that has since been identified as a super-concentrated extract of animal and human fats.

And while searching the alien's silver-foil fanny pack for [redacted] might [redacted] that [redacted] did to a laboratory technician when confronted by Burgess, a shaved brutishly converted to flab.

Under intense questioning, the extraterrestrial reportedly leaked that "thousands of my com raiders have been luring junk heads with the strange signals for [redacted] Earth years. Now we will reap the rewards of the harvest of your [redacted] cows, who by anyone's reckoning, make for [redacted] eatin'."

"The threat is real," FBI [redacted] Robert Mueller was warned in an alarming internal memo that was leaked to reporters in Washington, D.C., on Nov. 4.

"Their intention is to abduct, slaughter and eat overweight Americans, and not just a few here and there — we're talking about millions of them.

"An extraterrestrial invasion, herding process and mass abduction seem imminent, and the question is: Can we stop it?"

The [redacted] will neither confirm nor deny the existence of the memo, but it is known that Mueller has asked for "a full-scale genetic assessment of the threat" to national security before he decides just how to break the news to American citizens. 147 million of which are grossly overweight and would appear to be at risk.

If somebody thinks he's going to send up on a space alien's dinner table with an apple in his mouth he's going to do whatever it takes to keep that from happening, and that includes losing weight," James Meg [redacted], ex-[redacted] of the San Francisco-[redacted] fat-pride group, [redacted] Beautiful [redacted] and Men of America.

"If extraterrestrials were targeting skinny people, I'll guarantee you there would be a national alert.

"It just goes to show that people of size always get the short [redacted]stick."

• On the night of a Full Moon, pick or buy six red apples, and one green apple. Choose large, firm specimens — bruises can ruin the spell. You'll also need a handful of whole cloves and the largest bill you have. Push the cloves into the apples, forming dollar signs. Then place the bill underneath the green apple on a table bathed in moonlight. A more confident about a different hairstyle you try in March hurts your feelings, but consider the source.

Commit to an exercise routine in May for summer strength.

A dentist could recommend extensive work on your teeth in July. Here's a hint: Your stars say get a second opinion. The [illegible] of plucky Pluto on your sign in September inspires a complete lifestyle change, and some Water Bearers get married then.

Avoid Halloween candy in October, when you could easily gain back weight you lost earlier in the year.

Some Aquarians are troubled by [illegible] in November, but eating lots of turkey helps you sleep better, and your pain is soon banished. Your stars promise relief in December.

FUTURE PROSPECTS: Drinking more fluids in August leads to less fatigue and helps you shed excess weight, too.
THE WORM IN YOUR APPLE: Don't agree to drive a friend anywhere on a rainy night in October.
EAT YOUR APPLE A DAY: Fancy and sweet, spiced with cloves for energy. For a boost in your metabolism sprinkle a dash of nutmeg on your applesauce.
STRONGEST DAY: Saturday.

YOUR POSITIVE TRAITS ARE: Dutiful, dependable, a thinking/kind-hearted, romantic.

BUT THE WORM IN YOUR APPLE CAN BE: Moody, reckless, hard to pin down, easy to fleece, unrealistic.

GOLDEN DELICIOUS LOVE

SATURN passing through Pisces in January attracts strength to all your relationships. Dating singles could finally get the commitment you've been dreaming of, and marrieds enjoy peaceful family relations at home.

Although tempters could flare during the opposition February 18, by March harmony rules again.

Marrieds renew passion in the back seat of a showroom car during a bout of spring fever in April, and singles learn that opposites really do attract them. Fish learn something interesting about a prospective partner during the conjunction June 21, and that could lead to a first date in July.

Fun in the sun with family and friends from early August, when a glut of alpha lovers to travel opportunity.

Single in September? New love single-mindedly you think your enthusiasm might burst, but your stars indicate you'll still be dating come October.

An argument with a partner in November could upset your apple cart — apple juice or you'll storm right out.

Are you considering walking to the altar in December? The advice of one who speaks in tongues at a church can help you decide.

FUTURE PROSPECTS: An apple peel tossed on the floor during an anniversary party reveals the initials of your future lover.
THE WORM IN YOUR APPLE: A lover's tales of derring-do in July could be nothing more than hot air — don't believe everything you hear then.
BEST MATCH: Scorpio, Capricorn, Cancer.
WORST MATCH: Gemini, Virgo, Sagittarius.
BEST DAYS TO MEET THE APPLE OF YOUR EYE: Monday, Thursday.

MONEY GROWS ON TREES

JANUARY could bring an inheritance of a new car from a relative you never liked. As a mark of respect, attend the funeral and take a crying quilt.

Fish are lucky at work in February, but something off in the love stakes. Pisces's retrograde cycle on February 28 could get you into trouble.

Family expenses appear just like an apple in a tree grows in April, but unbudgeted extravagance attracts a whiplash in May.

Book your yearly vacation in June, when mighty Mercury promises you'll get a good deal. Single Fish could find love and money on the same hot August day — sorry, this one bone is short and ugly, but this [illegible] your wildest dreams.

A trip to an orchard in September for cider could lead to a new job, and for some Fish this involves a move across the country in October.

Lady Luck is on your side in November, when you find a winning lottery ticket lying in a gutter. A restaurant meal leads to a stroke of luck during the New Moon on New Year's Eve.

FUTURE PROSPECTS: An impromptu proposal of hot, fresh apple pie and a pressurized can of whipped cream could lead to a windfall in April.
THE WORM IN YOUR APPLE: A warranty that comes with a car you buy in September is useless if you don't read it in writing!
HOW TO GET OUT OF THE MONEY PITS — HEAD TO PROSPERITY: Take the advice offered by a penny-pinching relative and you'll grow wealth within the year. Avoiding debt leads to greater security.
BEST DAYS FOR A WINDFALL: Sunday, Friday.

KEEP THE DOCTOR AWAY

POST holiday paunch could convince the Pisces child to go on a diet in January, but astrological influences indicate you're better off waiting until the end of February to begin.

The advice of a man with a bad tongue you meet in March helps you buy a designer wardrobe at bargain basement prices. But don't agree to let his wife accompany you to shop — her fashion sense stinks.

A session under tanning lights in May could lead to a bad burn — set the timer carefully.

Exercising with family and friends leads to enhanced health in June and July, but if a friend wants to accompany you to the gym in August say no — she's a ditz and could injure you!

Vegetables are crucial to good health in September, and a daily salad is Pisces' best shield against illness.

Your metabolism speeds up in November, allowing you to feast without guilt. But avoid excessive consumption of sweets in December, which pounds could easily pile on.

FUTURE PROSPECTS: Water sports hold the key to weight loss and strength for the Fish child — begin swimming daily in June.
THE WORM IN YOUR APPLE: Driving while fatigued in April could lead to a car crash. Traveling tired? Take a cab.
EAT YOUR APPLE A DAY: Blend into a peanut butter sandwich each morning for breakfast — your energy remains high throughout the entire day.
STRONGEST DAY: Saturday.

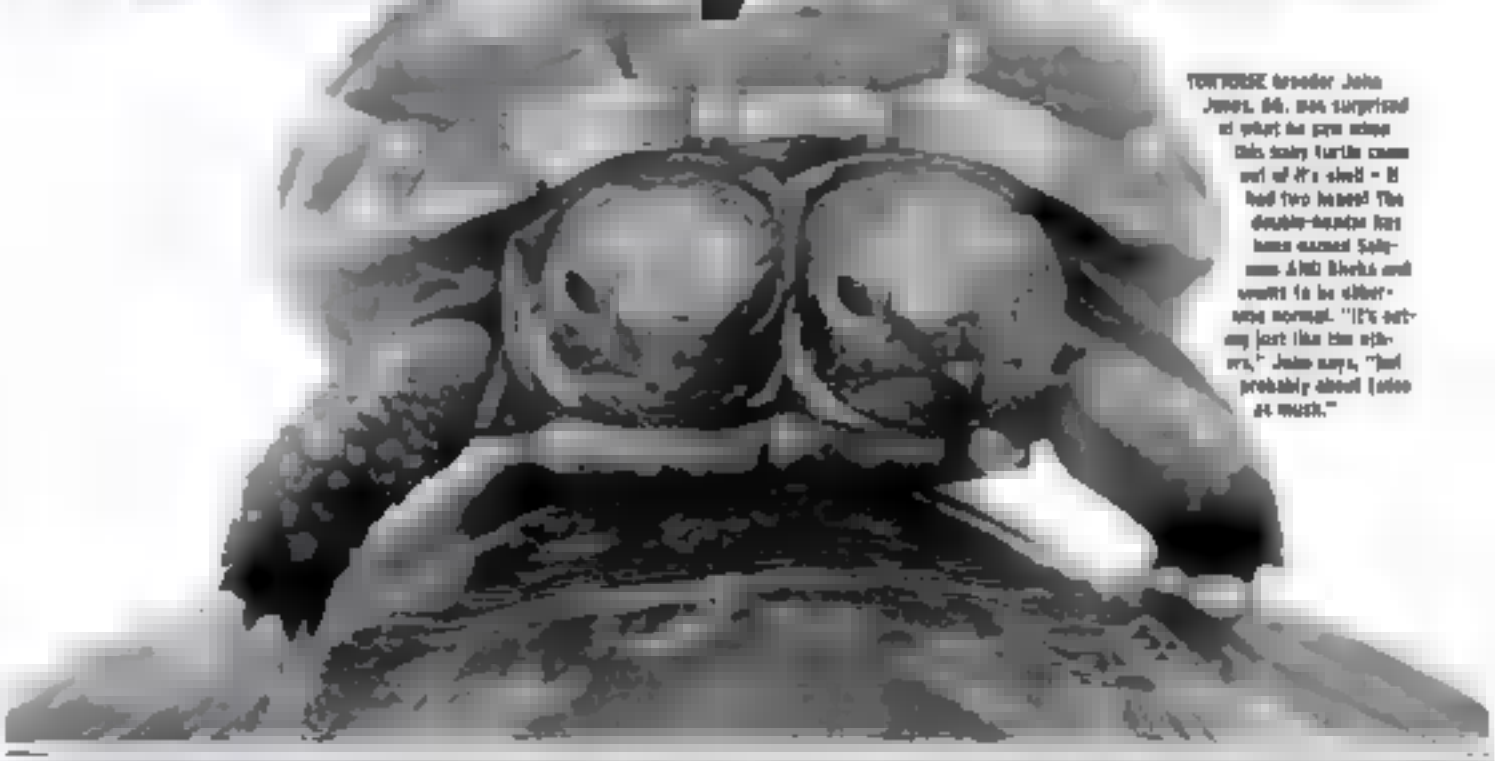
HEADS, I WIN!



TORTOISE breeder John Jones, 66, was surprised at what he saw when this baby turtle came out of it's shell - it had two heads! The double-headed tot has named Solomon Aldi Blocks and wants to be otherwise normal. "It's eating just like the others," Jones says, "but probably about twice as much."

LEONARDO DICAPRIO played a phony pilot in the movie Catch Me If You Can.

PHONY PILOT COULD BE IN CONTROL OF NEXT PLANE YOU BOARD!

By BECKY TOOD

BEWARE! Phony pilots are popping up at airports all over the country, reveals an FAA source.

"God help the passengers if one of these fake jet jockeys gets command of their aircraft," says the insider. "The deranged lunatics have absolutely no idea what they're doing. Even if by some miracle they could actually get the plane in the air they'd crash and burn within seconds, taking hundreds of innocent people with them."

The counterfeit sky captains suffer from a mental disease psychiatrists call "Pretender Syndrome."

"The patient is out of touch with reality and believes he is actually a pilot or a surgeon or an astronaut or whatever," says Dr. Harvey Lutz, a New York psychotherapist who specializes in treating the illness. "A Pretender is dangerous to himself and those around him, especially if he performs brain surgery or something of that nature."

The FAA insider advises plane passengers to carefully check their pilot's credentials with the airline or airport authorities.

"If something seems fishy, DON'T board the jet," adds the

MOLE MEN COULD BE LIVING UNDER YOUR LAWN

They are approximately 2 feet tall, walk on 2 legs and worship humans!

By RICK JEFFERYS

SCIENTISTS have uncovered one of the most amazing discoveries of all time — a race of Mole People living beneath the Earth's surface.

According to noted biologist Dr. Alfred Dunner, who is preparing a presentation of his findings for the American Medical Association, the subterranean beings are approximately 2 feet tall, covered with velvety dark fur and walk on arms. The creatures possess shovel-like feet they use to dig long tunnels.

The new species — which Dunner has dubbed Homole Sapien — dines on insects, earthworms, grubs and an occasional Happy Meal stomped into the ground by a spoiled child.

"The Mole People are terrified of human beings," reveals Dunner. "Their movements through a complicated series of burrows and dens are completely silent. They could carry on their lives beneath your front lawn and you would never know it."

They're hideously ugly and destroy plants and flowers," says Dunner. "But they don't deserve to be poisoned, gunned, decapitated, stabbed, bludgeoned with shovels or stomped to death by gardeners and homeowners."

The scientist and his research team were 10 feet beneath the cricket exhibit at Brooklyn's Botanical Gardens when they made the groundbreaking discovery.

"We were working with our latest humane extermination device, the Mole Motel II," says Dunner. "I turned to my evil league, but instead found myself looking into the beady little eyes of a Mole Person! I screamed and fainted."

Members of the underground society hate surface dwellers, but know Dunner was different.

"Two of them carried me into their den, which was tastefully paneled in woody pine and had a wet bar," he recalls. "They showed me a photo album filled with photos of myself. This didn't surprise me. It's only natural they worship me as the god I am."

Dr. T.B. Green, a geologist on Dunner's team, watched his boss disappear on the shoulders of the creatures.

"I ran after them as they took Dr. Dunner to their den," says Green. "It had a nice stone fireplace, but no photos of me, even though I helped develop Mole Model 6."

Since Homsie Sapiens have no ears, they speak through sign language, which the scientists caught on to quickly.

"We learned they were really pissed about the new Whack-A-Mole game," says Dunner. "I explained that it was only a game, and that I was sorry. They accepted my apology and invited me to stay for dinner. I ate a delicious meal of fresh worms and great grandchildren from interspecies marriages between garden moles and people who had been buried alive.

"In the olden days, approximately 6,000 individuals each year suffered accidental funerals. With no high tech medical equipment, many doctors thinking were coma for death.

"When the 'dead' person woke up, they screamed and clawed at the casket. Compassionate moles dug us and freed them. The two groups hit it off, dated and wed."

Dunner is now working to raise money for a return trip to learn more about the incredible

First there was Road Rage,

MOVIE RAGE!

By [redacted]

A BLOODY new phenomenon called Movie Rage is sweeping the nation, leaving hundreds of inconsolable movie fans injured and even dead, says a shocking survey.

According to a poll of the nation's emergency rooms, more and more patients are going to the theater to see the latest flick and departing in an ambulance.

"Movie Rage makes Road Rage look like child's play," says Dr. Jorge Gonzalez, an ER physician at Our Lady Of Angels in The Outfield in San Diego, Calif.

"Last Saturday night I pictured up a woman who was viciously stabbed with a cell fits. She kept answering her cell phone during Shrek 2. The lady sitting next to her went berserk.

"Frankly, I think she deserved it. I hate it when I go to the movies and some jerk yells every five lefts in his own living room."

The survey showed the behaviors most likely to result in assault with a deadly weapon are: Talking, crunching popcorn, repeatedly sucking the last two orbitals of soda from a straw, answering a cell phone, rattling a plastic bag of candy, tipping boxes of Raisinettes or Slim Cays so the contents slide back and forth.

He's the World's Biggest Eater

— AND HE ONLY WEIGHS 125 LBS

By [redacted]

HUNGRY Peter Myers packs away more food in a day than most people eat in a week, but the [redacted] the hummingbird metabolism [redacted] weighs only 125 pounds — dripping wet!

That's the same the stick-thin 48-year-old weighed at age 14, even though he spends just about every waking moment pigging out on all the high-calorie, high-fat, high-carb foods that normal men and women are warned to steer clear of if they don't want [redacted] into blimps.

A typical breakfast spread [redacted] a [redacted] slab of his favorite German chocolate cake, a couple of oatmeal raisin cookies, a pastry or two, jelly donuts, blueberry muffins or banana bread, a carton of chocolate ice cream, fresh fruit, milk, cereal, leftover pizza, bacon and eggs, buttered toast, smoky link sausages, piping hot hash browns and soda pop and orange juice to wash it all down!

Lunch is more substantial and a lot meatier, usually consisting of traditional, stick-to-your-ribs selections like mouth-watering chops and steaks, more crisp, pan-fried bacon, a thick juicy hamburger or two, clam chowder, oyster stew or some other hearty soup, mountains of golden french fries, more white bread that he enjoys both plain and toasted as well as buttered and slathered with jam, and all the sweet tea he can pour down his throat.

But dinner, as he puts it, "is [redacted] buffet," says the string bean who attributes his ability to eat without gaining weight to "a world-class thyroid" that burns calories like a blast furnace.

"Most of the time I'll pick up a 21-piece bucket of fried chicken," he continues, "or a 10- to 12-pound smoked ham or maybe a fresh-baked turkey from my supermarket's deli on [redacted] home from work.

"[redacted] mashed taters and gravy, too, so I pick up a couple [redacted] those to go [redacted] meal. It sounds like a lot to some [redacted] my plate.

"And I'll keep snacking through the night. Ice cream, cake, popcorn, candy bars, peanuts, potato chips, corn chips. I'm not really all that particular. I just go for [redacted] the blood!"

"It's kind of a mixed blessing, though.

"[redacted] one hand, [redacted] whatever I want, and never gain an ounce. On the [redacted] my food bills are outrageous."

In fact, Myers' parents went bankrupt trying to feed him during his teenage years, forcing him to quit school at age 17 and join the Army.

But he didn't last long there, either. After just eight months, he was given an early out and honorable discharge simply because, as one of his officers put it, "Son, Bill Pentagon says you're eating the military out of house and home."

Back in Georgia, his fortunes changed — and he landed a job [redacted] for a large regional bakery.

Why do hissing demons keep chewing holes in my panties?

SIZZLING SERENA

Dear Serena: Drooling, hissing demons from Hell have invaded my laundry room. They come in at night when I'm asleep and chew and tear holes in all my panties — it's gotten so bad that I'm spending $15 to $20 a week on replacements.

I'm not making this up.

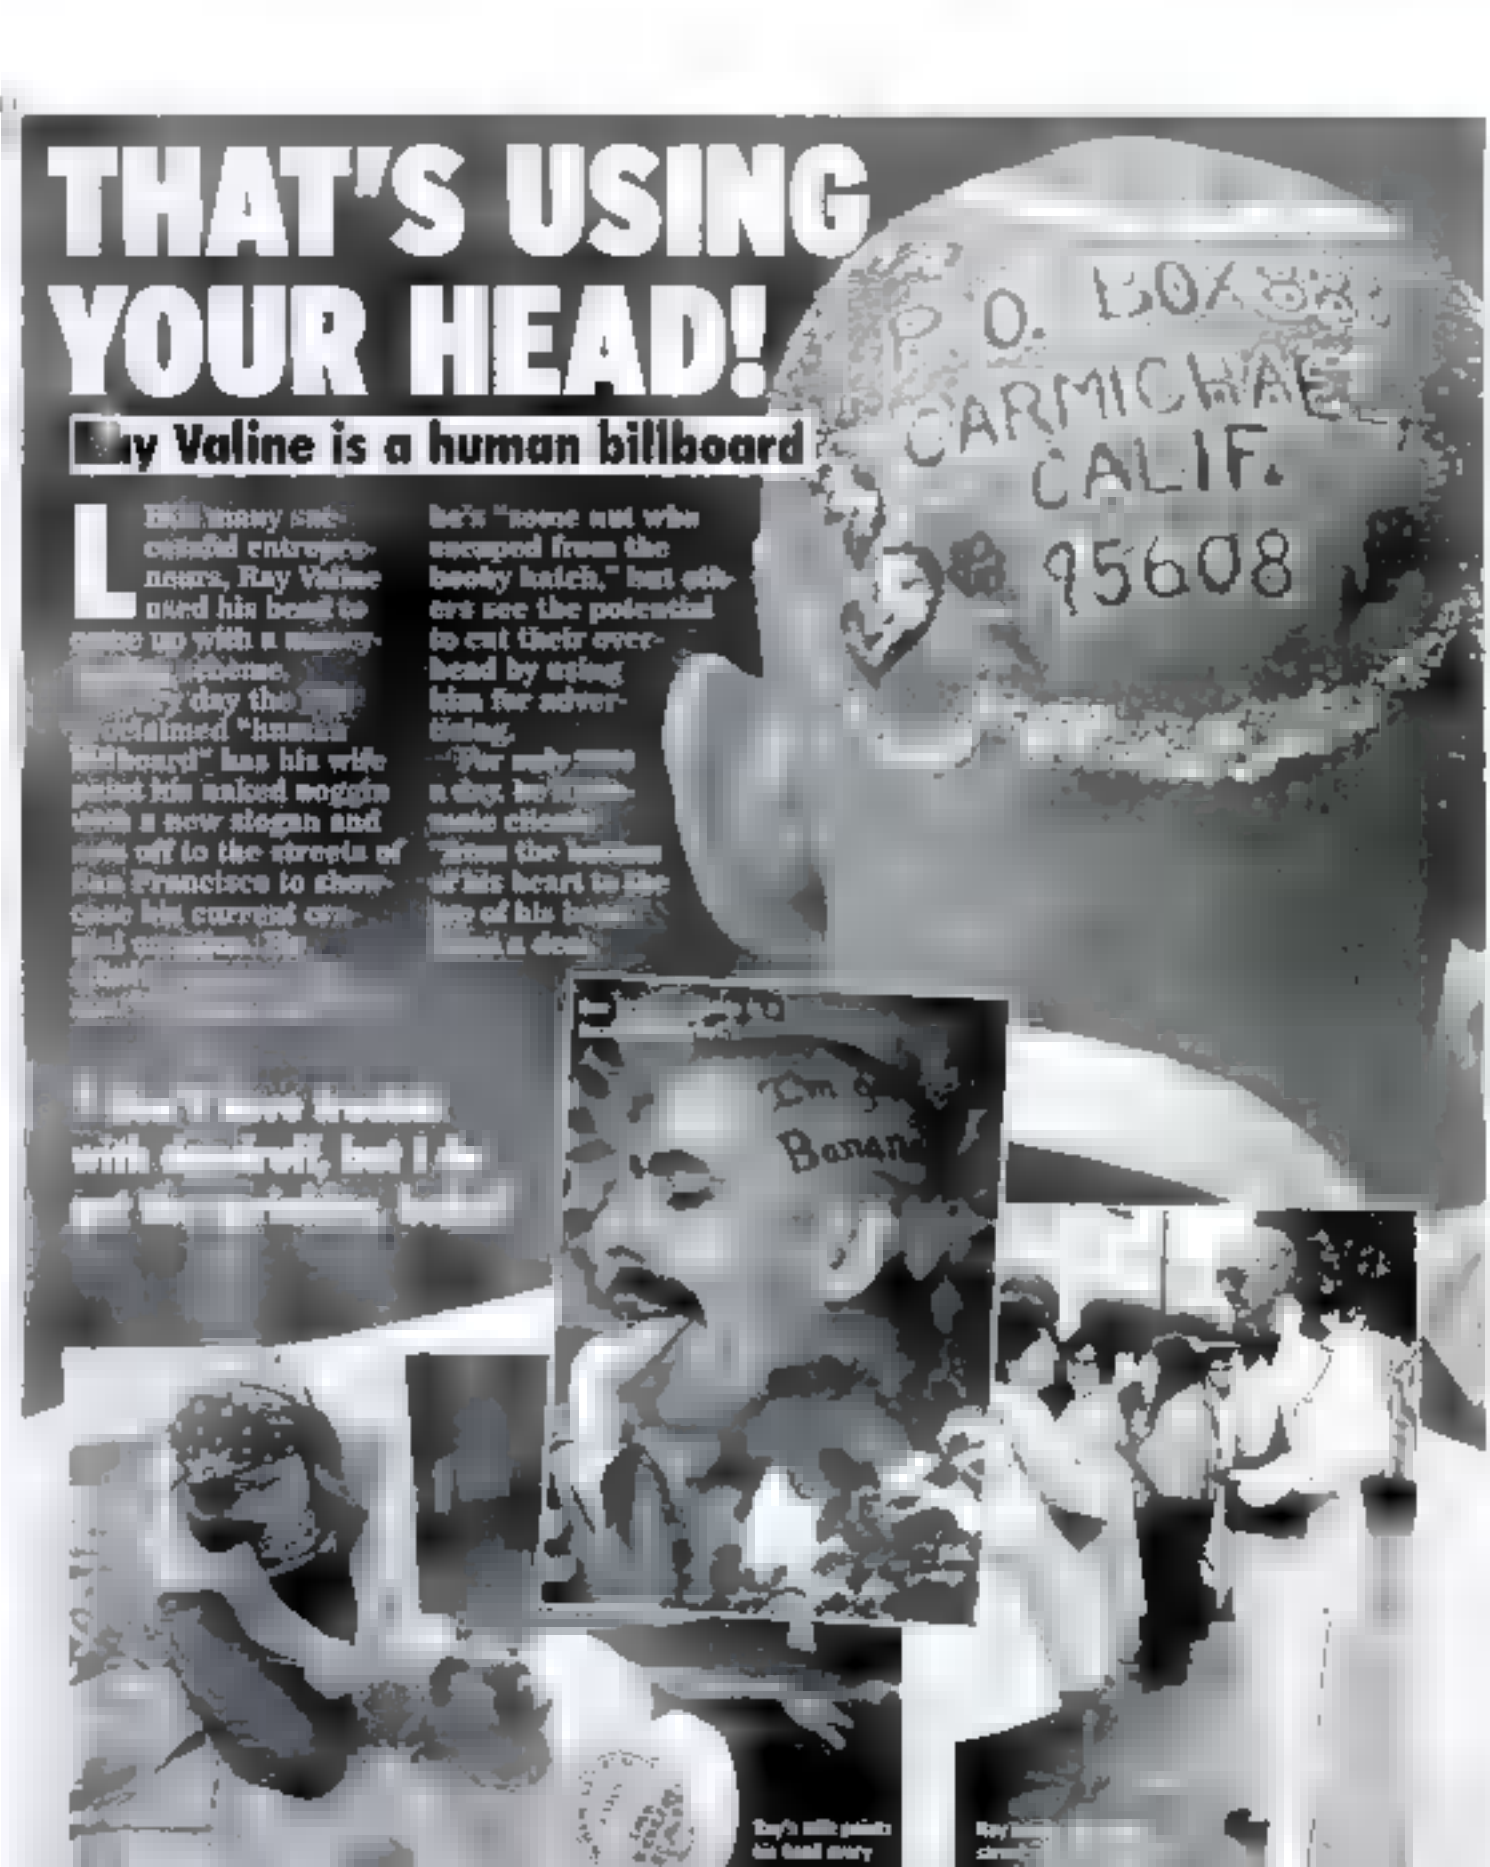
[illegible] serena, and it's not funny. On several occasions I heard them knocking things over and caught them in the act. When they see me, they disappear. But they look evil. And they have long sharp fangs. I'm afraid that one day they might turn on me and cause me grievous bodily harm. How can I make them go away? Help me! — Tormented in Boston, Mass.

Dear Tormented: Drooling demons chewing up your underwear — they're [illegible] — and [illegible] [illegible] [illegible]

THAT'S USING YOUR HEAD!

Ray Valine is a human billboard

Like many successful entrepreneurs, Ray Valine used his head to come up with a money-making scheme. Every day the self-proclaimed "human billboard" has his wife paint his naked noggin with a new slogan and then sets off to the streets of San Francisco to showcase his current ad. Some people say he's "some nut who escaped from the booby hatch," but others see the potential to cut their overhead by using him for advertising. For only [illegible] a day, he'll make clients "from the bottom of his heart to the top of his head, a dear friend, a dear friend."



HOW TO TELL IF HUBBY IS FAKING AN AFFAIR

1 in 5 cheaters are bogus, research shows

By MICHAEL FORSYTH

LADIES, have certain clues led you to suspect your husband is cheating on you? Don't be so sure. A surprising one in five "straying" hubbies is actually faking an affair just to get a quick divorce, experts say.

"These are typically men who've grown apart from their wives over the years but hate confrontation," explains relationship guru Dr. Kathy [redacted] of New York City. "They don't want any arguments, any pleading from their partner to try to 'work things out' or months of marriage counseling — they just want out [redacted] being 'trapped' cheating is an easy shortcut."

Here, from the expert, are 10 telltale signs that your man's affair is bogus.

1 LIPSTICK ON THE COLLAR. Tests have shown it's physically impossible for a big red kiss to get on a shirt collar by accident. "Apply some of your own lipstick to your husband's lips, either him to kiss a napkin and chances are you'll find the lip print is a perfect match," Dr. Askerwitz suggests.

2 THONG PANTIES IN YOUR BED. Are you supposed to believe the "other woman" forgot she wasn't wearing underwear [redacted] snuck out of your home? "Not panties she paid $70 for at Victoria's Secret," says the expert.

3 REEKS OF CHEAP PERFUME. Search his junk drawer and you'll undoubtedly find the [redacted] inexpensive fragrance he used to [redacted] his affair.

4 SCRATCHES ON [redacted]. If they look a bit too perfect to be real, they probably aren't.

5 NEW BEDROOM TRICKS. "If [redacted] that if you [redacted] his computer, you'll [redacted] be downloaded those 'daring' techniques from the Internet," Dr. Askerwitz says.

6 MAKES LOVE TO YOU LESS FREQUENTLY [redacted] sexually during [redacted] — or doesn't [redacted] secret [redacted] of filthy phone [redacted].

7 HARASSING PHONE CALLS FROM "LOVE RIVAL." Tape a call and listen to the voice again closely. Isn't that his guy work buddy or favorite female cousin?

Girl sues parents because she's ugly

By MOLLY FLEMING

BRANDY SUE Schlessel is sick of being ugly. She's tired of all the "bald-face" jokes at school. That's why the presumably well-to-do, unattractive 16-year-old Dearborn teen decided to sue her parents.

Brandy Sue's parents, Helen and Calvin, are devastated by their daughter's drastic decision. "We think Brandy Sue is beautiful," Mrs. Schlessel says between sobs. "That's why people say good money to watch her and [illegible] look at our [illegible]."

Brandy Sue can't wait for the ordeal to be resolved. "I just want to be normal looking ... you know, like J.Lo or Britney Spears," she says. "With the money my parents fork over, I'll [illegible] plastic surgery, liposuction, a tummy tuck and maybe even a new [illegible]."

Ugly kids around the world are eagerly awaiting the outcome of the lawsuit. Brandy Sue is a hero to them. "Without [illegible] be allowed to have offspring, Mr. Schlessel's lawyer would justify the Devil himself."

WITH enough wine for a 1,800-person toast, this 130-liter bottle of Beringer Cabernet Sauvignon Private Reserve was auctioned off by Sotheby's New York for charity. No wonder it's been dubbed the "Methuselah" – this giant vintage would be enough to wet anyone's whistle for a long, long time!

HOOTERS OPENS EATERY IN CHINA

SEE BELLE Despite critics' attempts to shut down the tech-fried franchise for its perceived sexism, customers continue to flock to the new eatery.

By TAYLOR

THE BEER, boob and chicken wing craze has officially made it all the way around the world — Hooters just opened up in China!

The American based business brought its self described "delightfully tacky yet unrefined" restaurant to the other side of the globe and into one of the world's fastest growing economies.

"The people of Shanghai something fun with service we're happy to bring it to them," says general manager Cameron Jiang.

Good service may be one of Hooter's , but for many customers, it's not first thing that comes to mind.

The chain is famous for it's busty waitresses poured into revealing and tiny hot shorts.

It's an image that wouldn't always have been accepted in China's traditional male dominated culture with conservative views. Showing skin and public displays of affection were at one time forbidden, but apparently times are changing.

"You see young women on the street wearing skimpy outfits so I don't think eating with Hooters, as long as customers waitresses ," says one a pharmaceutical company.

Hooters opened just enough the rein. These days, Shanghai is home to hundreds of lingerie bars, massage parlors, telephone chat lines and sex shops. The public is increasingly accepting of premarital sex and couples hug and kiss openly.

Critics have to company for it's perceived sexism, but have so far been unsuccessful. While the chain that attitude is more important than appearance, most customers admit it's more than just attitude that keeps them coming back.

The waitresses are mainly college students or recent grads and don't seem to mind the .

"The uniform is no problem, it's very beautiful and there are chances of moving into management," says Lily Zhang. "It's really a happy place and I love this job."

The new Hooters is located in the touristy Honggiao district, and there are plans for eight more in other cities throughout China. Hooters already has more restaurants per capita than any other country in the world, and there are already several American food chains in China. Burger King, Chili's and TGI have thus far established a presence.

The director of the Shanghai Culinary Association, Xue Yuanqing, says, "The market share is only so big for American food, and chains like KFC and McDonald's won't easily to Hooters."

"I don't know about this restaurant," he adds, "but generally American not for any particular virtues."

Bedside manner!

Monty Colin Farrell is definitely one of Hollywood's hottest exports. But when it comes to the American acting scene, he's proved he can be a blessing or curse. Women always fall for his charm, but we're pretty sure his bad habits don't have others. Can you guess who he's been linked to?

GUESS THE FAKE

IS THE BOGUS STORY #1, 2 OR 3?

WHAT YOU read on these pages is a Weekly World News FIRST — a made-up story!

Normally, we would never publish a fictitious article, but we're breaking policy for the sake of our new, exciting contest.

In fact, writing a fake story is so alien to our staff of talented reporters, that they couldn't do it. We actually had to go out of the office and hire a well-known novelist, who asked to remain anonymous, to compose the made-up story for the contest.

Of course, the four real news stories were written by our veteran staff.

Now, it's up to you to tell which is real and which is not. Just fill in the coupon on the facing page and check the number of the story you believe is FAKE.

Entries must be postmarked by Dec. 20. The $200 winner will be drawn [redacted]

1 MEN NEVER [redacted]

AN ELDERLY [redacted] couple drove around lost for so long their family actually called police to report them missing.

Violet and William Kaczmark, both in their 80s, made a wrong turn somewhere en route to a family get-together. Once they realized [redacted] for help, but her stubborn husband refused.

"I told him I had seen two different cops and I think I'm going to one cop to tell him I'm lost and he says, 'No I don't want you to do that.' "

After nearly 24 hours — and three stops for gas — a stranger [redacted] recognized the car from a broadcasted description, waved them over and called police.

The wife later commented they'd probably still be lost if [redacted] stopped them.

2 FIRING THE SQUAD

THE COUNTRY of Vietnam is seriously thinking about doing it's firing squads.

The seven-member shooting teams are currently the capital punishment de jour, but officials are examining more reliable options like lethal injection and mechanized guns.

According to a government report, 30 percent of the riflemen are typically volunteers who often become too nervous to finish the job. When the criminal-killing moment arrives, they tend to tremble, and more often than not, miss their intended target.

Bui Doc Long, head of the Supreme Prosecution Institute's inspection department, says the new system will be nearly impossible to mess up.

"The executioner will just have to push a button."

3 POTTY BREAK BRIDGE

EXCESSIVE tinkling under an Indonesian bridge has it tottering dangerously near collapse.

Public works officials say the overpass now slopes at an angle because of the steady stream of people urinating on one of it's pillars.

Azmi Lukmal, head of the local highway and bridge department says official tests have not been done on the 1,777 meter tourist attraction, but there is concern "that one of its main support piers has been weakened by urine, as it is a popular spot for locals to relieve themselves."

Until the soaked structure is shored-up, he says large vehicles and cargo traffic are

4 SON OF A GUN

A MISSISSIPPI man was arrested after his son brought a loaded handgun to his preschool's "Show and Tell."

The toddler was reportedly given the pistol after whining about not having a toy to bring in show in class. Since the child was only visiting his father for a few days while the mother was out of town, he had no toys at the house.

"The kid was crying about being the only one without a toy, so the deadbeat dad grabbed a gun out of his nightstand and shoved it in the kid's Scooby Doo backpack," says the cop.

"It's a good thing the gun didn't go off, or it would have been a trial blow to the kid's

5 HUNGER PAINS

WILDLIFE experts believe a lion killed and ate 35 people in southern Tanzania — all because it had a toothache.

The lion probably experienced a lot of pain (arrrr) clearly when it was chewing," says Dr. Rolf Baldus who has worked with the government on wildlife issues for 17 years.

"It almost certainly found human easier to catch and less painful to eat."

After two years of terrorizing Rufiji River villages, the man eating beast was finally killed. An examination of the skull revealed the source of its pain — a large abscess beneath one

KINDERGARTEN GIRL SUES CLASSMATE FOR SEXUAL HARASSMENT!

By MARK MILLER

A 5-YEAR-OLD kindergarten girl is suing her male classmates – for sexual harassment!

Kimberly Corcoran (a pseudonym) a student at Dan Queyle Kindergarten, just outside Rochester, N.Y., has, through her parents' law firm of Lewis, Russel and Kinsey, filed suit against Peter Sanders (a pseudonym), 5, for sexual harassment, shock, humiliation, embarrassment, mental injury, mental anguish, and emotional distress.

"It was awful," remembers Corcoran. "It started during finger-painting, when he showed me this dog he painted with a great big wee-wee. Gross.

Then, during lunch, he took his hot dog out of the bun and asked me if I wanted to touch his wiener. Double-gross. And during naptime, he pretended to be asleep while he rolled on top of me and started kissing me. Yeuh!!"

Corcoran's attorney, Andrew Russel, is confident of a victory. "Once the decision is made in our favor, Sanders will be immediately transferred to a juvenile detention facility where he will no longer be able to impose his filth on innocent girls."

BATTLE-AX: Only known photograph of Hameeda Bin Laden – who's said to be coyote ugly under her burqa.

OSAMA IS A HENPECKED HUBBY!

Terror honcho's newest bride is a bossy battle-ax, Al Qaeda insiders claim

By MICHAEL FORSYTH

MASTER of disaster Osama Bin Laden may lead the world's most feared terrorist organization — but at home, he's a henpecked hubby who doesn't make a move without his bossy wife's approval!

That's the surprising revelation of Al Qaeda insiders, who grumble that Bin Laden's new bride Hameeda is such a battle-ax, she's wreaking havoc in the outfit.

"Hameeda verbally abuses Osama in front of the men — calling him 'lazy' and refusing to let him leave the tent until he's done all his chores," reveals a high-ranking Al Qaeda operative.

"While Osama's other two wives are content to remain home like good Moslem women, Hameeda insists on traveling with Osama — and even having a say in our day-to-day operations.

"A lieutenant will start laying out a plan and she'll rudely interrupt him. And if Hameeda says the idea 'stinks,' Osama will meekly agree. That she-devil is turning our leader into a whipped dog."

CIA terrorist hunters believe Hameeda's father is chief of a village on the Afghanistan-Pakistan border where the secret wedding took place in July.

"From all accounts, she's incredibly pushy — a cross between Hillary Clinton and Saddam Hussein's sadistic sons," said one spook. "Some of our sources have even taken to calling her The Witch."

Harpy-like Hameeda has reportedly insisted on numerous changes in Osama's lifestyle, including:

● NO MORE WASTING FAMILY FORTUNE ON JIHAD — Hameeda demanded that Osama stop dipping into his $300 million inheritance to fund Al Qaeda.

"She told him, 'There are plenty of wealthy Saudis who will donate to the cause — I'm not going to end up a pauper,' " the Al Qaeda source reveals.

● NO MORE PERVERTED SEX — Osama's other wives looked the other way while the notoriously perverse terror whiz indulged in clandestine sex with everything from Bedouin boys to goats — and, as Weekly World News reported, even a bizarre romance with Saddam Hussein that culminated in a gay 'marriage.'

"Hameeda warned Osama that if he strays, he'll get the Lorena Bobbitt treatment," reveals Ramposey.

● NO MYSTERIOUS

Yes, my beloved!

WHO'S THE BOSS? Bin Laden was all smiles at his wedding in July – but his pushy bride is reportedly making his life a living hell.

ABSENCES — Disappearing into the [redacted] for prolonged periods with vague explanations is out. "Hameeda wants to know exactly where Osama is and with whom at all times," the Al Qaeda source says.

Why does the tough-as-nails terrorist put up with his overbearing mate?

"It's said Hameeda helped him to mend his broken heart after Saddam's capture," explains Ramposey. "He's emotionally dependent on her.

"The village chief told [redacted] his daughter was a quiet, traditional Muslim girl — a lie he concocted to get the shrew off his hands.

"He also told Osama she was a ravishing beauty under her veil, while in fact her face would stop a clock, as Osama learned on their wedding night.

"On the plus side, rumor has it

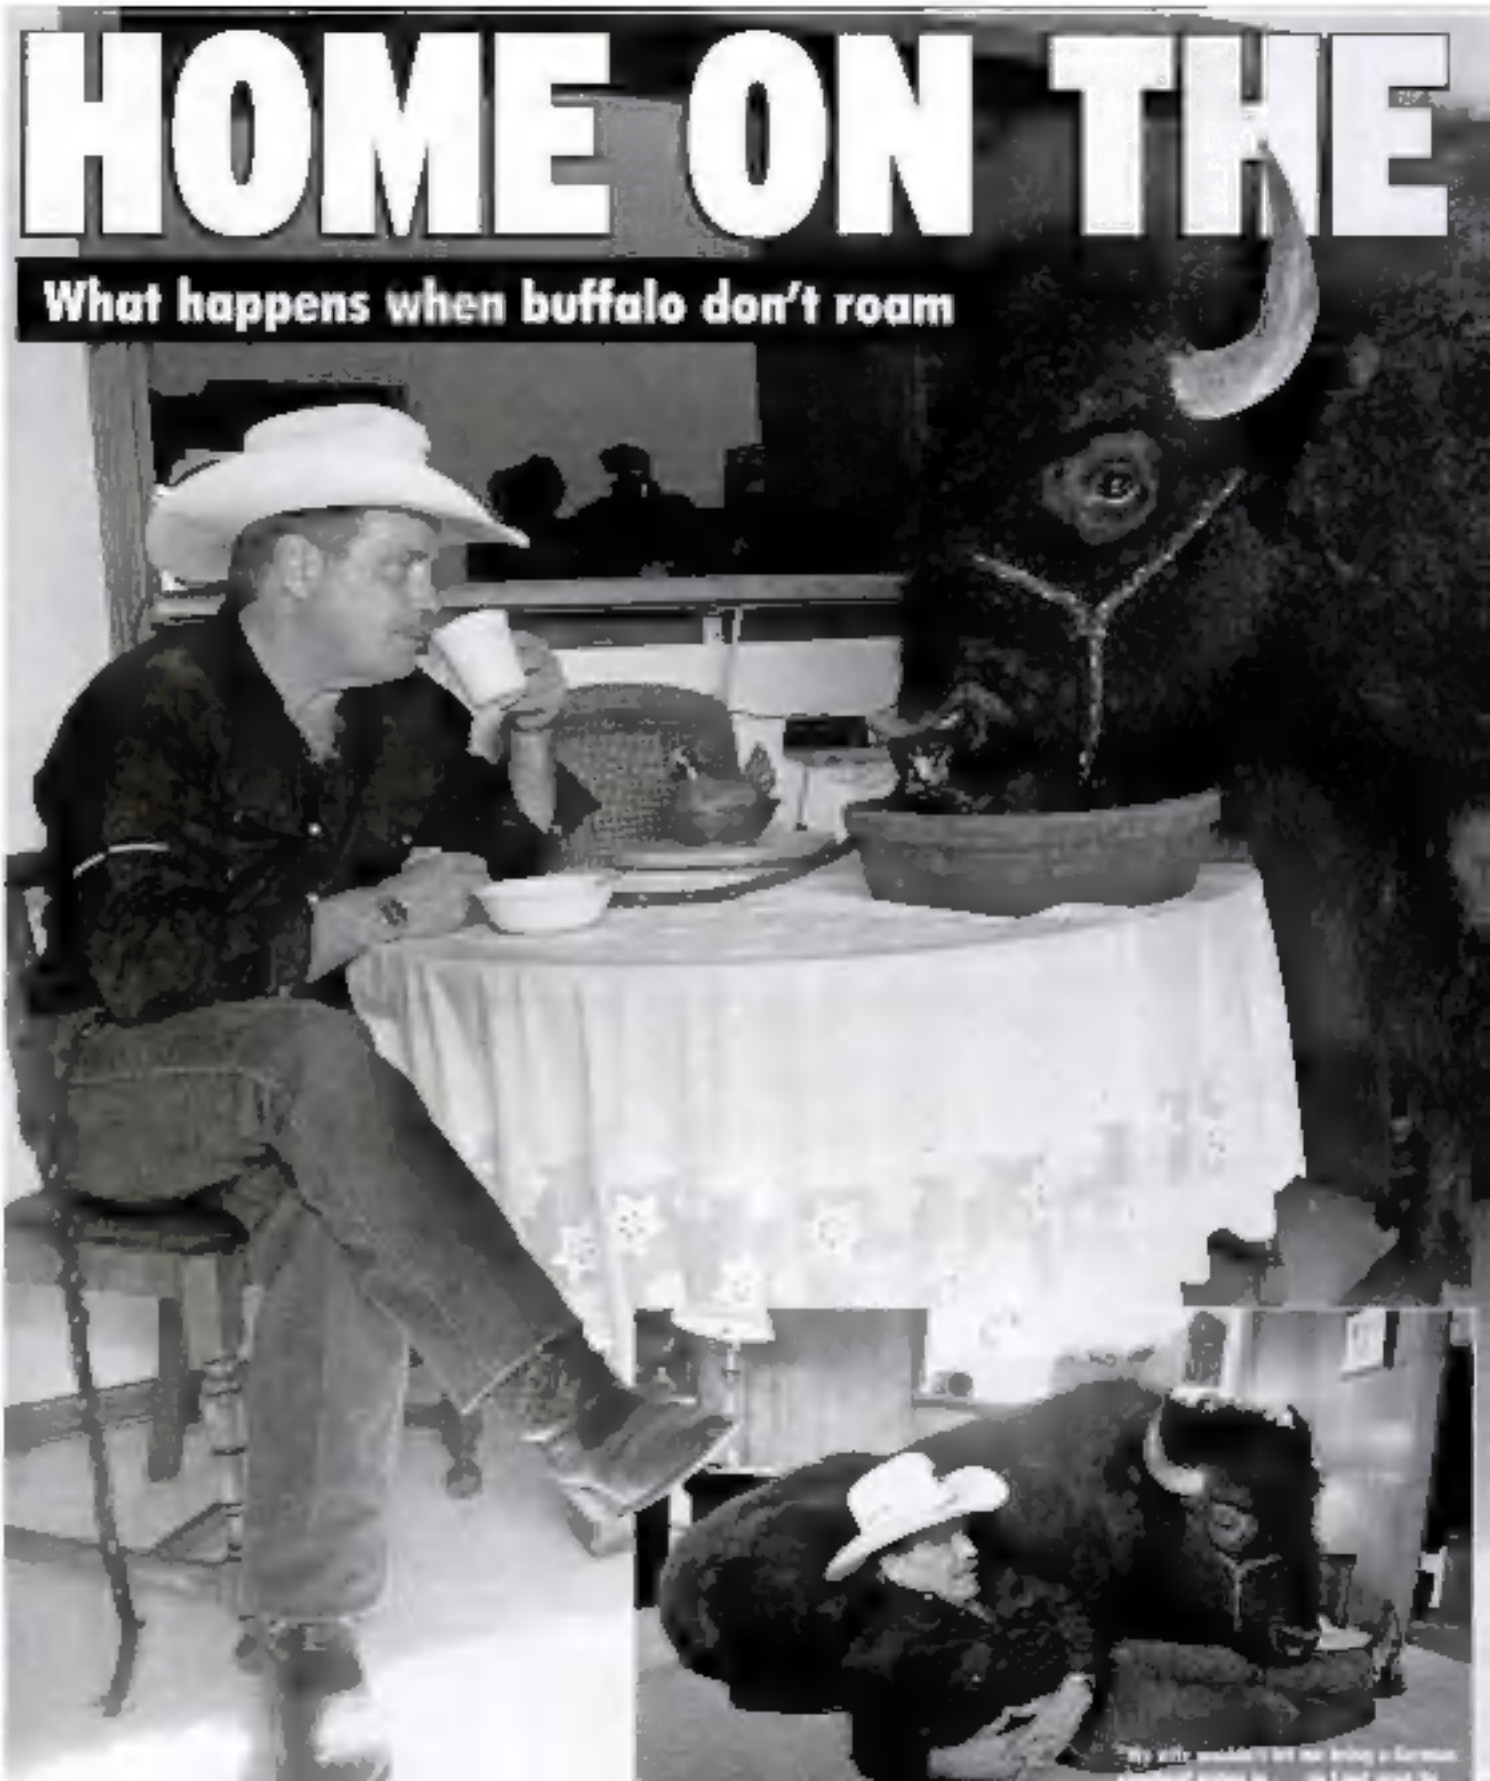
What happens when buffalo don't roam



RANGE

OH GIVE me a home where the buffalo roam . . . and eat breakfast? And watch TV? And cuddle up in front of the fireplace? No problem.

When Bailey D. Buffalo was just a calf, he was abandoned by his mother and adopted by Jim and Linda Santner. They bottle-fed him at their buffalo ranch in Spruce Grove, Canada, and he became part of the family. Now, four years and 1,600 pounds later, the brown, woolly beast still hangs around the house — and is even welcome at the table for Christmas dinner!

Bailey's temperament is pretty mellow for a buffalo, but Jim jokes that he has a secret trick to calm him down: "Every time he gets upset, or gets me upset . . . I just whisper in his ear . . . 'buffalo burgers.' "

BAILEY loves to watch TV. His favorite show? The Nature of Things.

To the Santners, Bailey's just a big pet with a big heart.

WOMANIZER BANNED FROM DATING SERVICE — AFTER LOVING & LEAVING 100 GALS

By KAYE MARCHAND

A MIDDLE-AGED Casanova has been permanently banned from an Internet dating service — for bedding more than 100 women and then dumping them!

DatingDirect.com, Britain's largest dating agency, gave 55-year-old Clive Worth the boot for showing a "lack of commitment," according to London's Daily Mirror.

The burly ex-miner has had 119 dates in five years and racked up a remarkable success rate — scoring with all most all of them. Yet bed-hopping Worth insists he's no womanizer and is upset about being kicked out.

"I've done nothing wrong," says Worth of Llanelli, England.

"The agency said they received complaints because women were traveling to meet me and wanted a commitment, but I didn't. But it's just that I haven't met the right woman yet."

Undeterred by the setback, Worth plans to sign up with another dating service — and vows to "keep looking for Miss Right" until he's 60.

City councilman argues born-again Christians need new birth certificates

By DAVID TOLSEY

DO YOU accept Jesus Christ as your personal savior? Well, if you do in Okanogan County, Wash., you may be praying . . . and paying down at Town Hall.

That's if Councilman Ronald Weinke has anything to say about it. Weinke is spearheading a bill that would require all Born-Again Christians to get new birth certificates.

"Don't make me out to be some sort of villain," says Weinke. "My proposal includes the creation of an express line at our Vital Records department where these Born-Agains can get their birth certificates created, so we need to properly account for them."

Opponents of Weinke argue that his proposal is just an attempt to generate additional revenues.

Says longtime resident Chloe Rudolph, "Councilman Weinke can justify this anyway he likes, but the bottom line is he's exploiting the Christian faith for political and financial gain. He's the one who really needs to be saved."

But other residents took a more reasoned approach. "The Lord works in mysterious ways," says resident Theodore "Doc" Wilson.

"Maybe all these Born-
